MAKE AN EFFORT TO PARDON LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS

Is Result of Supreme Court's Ruling On All Pending
Cases

WIPED OUT BY REPEAL

Those In Prisons Were Not Affected By the New Ruling

By William S. Neal
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(INS)—A new effort to obtain Presidential pardon for prohibition law violators in Federal prisons was inaugurated today as a result of the Supreme Court's ruling that all pending cases were wiped out by repeal.

The action of the high court resulted in saving thousands from prison and the logical next step is to free the thousands already in prison for the same offense.

"The decision will not bring freedom from prison or jail for any except those sentenced after December 5th and it is believed there are very few cases of this kind." Attorney General Cummings, however, said he would continue a lenient attitude toward Volstead law violators who have sought parole from prison or jail, for some time. He disclosed he has been recommending paroles for many "simple" violators of the act.

Rep. Clarence McLeod, R., of Michigan, who has pending in Congress a resolution calling upon the President to pardon prohibition law violators, is going to renew his efforts.

"We have an unusual situation," said McLeod. "The Supreme Court held that all cases where sentences have not been executed, including cases on appeal, are ended as a result of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Those in prison or jails are not affected."

"Thus a wealthy prohibition law violator who delayed his sentence for a year or two until repeal came, is

"Calendar of the Year" To Be One Feature at Hulmeville

HULMEVILLE, Feb. 7.—The community entertainment for the benefit of cases cared for by the Hulmeville Welfare Committee, next Monday evening, in the Hulmeville M. E. Church hall, is to be one of variety. Sketches and unique presentations, vocal and instrumental music, talent from here and from nearby communities, are promised.

The presentation by the M. E. Epworth League will be "The Calendar of the Year." The characters portrayed will represent the 12 months of the year. Participants will be: January, Miss Mary Thompson; February, Miss Frances Benner; March, Arthur McCarthy; April, Miss Myrtle Egley; May, Miss Grace H. Illick; June, Miss Adeline E. Reetz; July, Miss Edna M. Schatt; August, Miss Kathryn Halk; September, Misses Helen Woolman and Elizabeth Foster; October, Miss Elma E. Haefner; November, Miss Lorraine Winder; December, Miss Elaine Piston. The pianist who will play appropriate selections for each month is Miss Marie Hanson.

The Girls' Friendly Society of Grace P. E. Church, and the Auxiliary of William Penn Fire Company will each give a presentation of fine merit, also. Tickets are now being sold, and each person purchasing one will assist in buying necessary items for the needy of the community.

Philadelphia Man Held In $1300 After Croydon Crash

A Philadelphia man was held in $1300 bail this morning, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and with being a "hit-and-run" driver. The man is Herbert Conroy, 2045 East Westmoreland street, Philadelphia.

Conroy was given a hearing in the municipal building, here, this morning, before Justice of the Peace James Laughlin. Justice Laughlin fixed Conroy's bail at $800 for the first offense, and $500 on the second charge.

Conroy is also wanted by the Philadelphia police, it is stated, for stealing the truck which he was operating and which it is alleged at the time of the theft was loaded with merchandise.

Conroy yesterday afternoon, at about five o'clock, struck a vehicle operated by Mrs. Benjamin Ahart, at State Road and Patterson avenue. Mrs. Ahart sustained injury of the back and bruises.

The truck belongs to B. Fisher, 6035 Spruce street, Philadelphia, and was reported stolen to the Philadelphia police, yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. Conroy claims he left Philadelphia at one o'clock yesterday afternoon.

After the accident at State Road and Patterson avenue yesterday afternoon, Bristol police were called, and Chief Jones and fireman William Bennett caught up with Conroy on the Bristol Pike, where they placed him under arrest.

Mrs. Martha Main Dies At Her South Langhorne Home

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Feb. 6.—Following a long period of ill health, Mrs. Martha Main, widow of the Rev. Henry G. Main, died at her home here yesterday morning. The deceased formerly resided in Hulmeville, the late Rev. Main having served for a time as pastor of the Newhammy M. E. Church, there.

Survivors of the deceased include: one daughter, Miss Nellie E. Main, of this borough; and a step-daughter.

The funeral service will be held on Thursday at two p. m., from the Horner funeral home, Langhorne, with burial in Beechwood Cemetery, Hulmeville.

DEMOCRATIC SLATE FAILS TO PRODUCE HARMONY

Intensifies Opposition Expected to Break in Full Force Saturday

KENNEDY, VOTE GETTER

By Sydney H. Elges
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 6.—(INS)—Although the professed intent of its sponsors was to achieve "harmony," the slate of candidates for state-wide offices drawn up by Democratic chieftains at the recent meeting in Philadelphia has apparently failed to infuse the party ranks with that pacific quality to any appreciable extent.

It has, however, succeeded in intensifying opposition expected to break in full force here next Saturday when the Democratic state committee is called upon to endorse the candidates: Joseph F. Guffey, Pittsburgh, for United States Senator; George H. Earle III, Philadelphia, governor; Thomas Kennedy, Hazleton, lieutenant governor; Thomas A. Logue, Philadelphia, secretary of internal affairs, and State Rep. Chester H. Rhodes, Stroudsburg, judge of superior court.

The only potential candidate whose position on the slate seems to possess any degree of stability is Tom Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America. Foes, as well as friends, concede that Kennedy looms as the most powerful vote getter on the slate because of his favorable position with organized labor in the state and his acceptability to all factions of the party.

Strategically, Kennedy may be expected to wean away labor support upon which Gov. Gifford Pinchot will lean heavily if he fulfills anticipations of political leaders by announcing himself as a candidate for the United States Senate. Kennedy may be able to checkmate any aspirations the Governor has to capitalize on his efforts in behalf of social legislation.

Not all are convinced that the slating of Guffey, the State's original Roosevelt lieutenant and now patronage dispenser for the national administration, is permanent. Some expect him to follow the example of Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman, who quietly and willingly effaced himself from the political panorama when the party leaders decided on Earle.

Van Dyke's candidacy had been considered a stop-gap to hold back the flood of candidates which party leaders feared would clutter up the ticket. Some observers believe Guffey may allow himself to be unelected when conditions make it expedient. Guffey now holds the patronage reins tightly in his grasp but if Pennsylvania is fated to elect a Democratic senator it is not believed Guffey would be averse to placing control in the hands of a man largely of his own choosing.

Earle attracted world-wide attention shortly after he became minister to Austria when he issued a blunt criticism of the ambitions of Chancellor Hitler of Germany but the understanding that he was a heavy contributor to the Roosevelt campaign fund was believed to have stood more in his favor when leaders drew up the slate.

The slating of Logue and Van Dyke's withdrawal were the plums drawn by Sedgwick Kistler who is still national committeeman although he has been given little voice in party affairs since Guffey and Van Dyke unelected John Collins, of Connersport, his choice for state chairman, in 1932.

Rep. Rhodes, considered mildly anti-Guffey, has been closely identified with Judge Samuel Shull, of Stroudsburg, the Monroe county Democratic leader.

Opponents of the organization slate are still continuing efforts to slate Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia, former ambassador to Japan, and Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Greensburg, for the two top positions.

SUPERMAN QUALITIES LISTED FOR PARSON

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(INS)—Here's what it takes to be a parson, according to a notice posted in a City of London church: Strength of an ox. Tenacity of a bulldog. Daring of a lion. Patience of a donkey. Industry of a beaver. Meekness of a lamb. Hide of a rhinoceros. Disposition of an angel. Loyalty of an apostle. Faithfulness of a prophet. Fervency of an evangelist. Devotion of a mother.

BRISTOL DOCTOR RECALLS WHEN BEAVERS BUILT DAM BETWEEN ROCKY WOODS AND FEATHERBED RD. OVER 40 YEARS AGO; HASN'T HEARD OF ANY SINCE

Dr. Joseph deB. Abbott Says
Such Was On One of The Feeders for Mill Pond

EVIDENTLY WERE KILLED

Belief is That Beaver Dam
Road Received Its Name
From Said Dam

Dr. Joseph deBenneville Abbott, in speaking today of the beavers locating on Queen Anne's Creek, near Emille, recalled that a few beavers were making their home near Bristol when he came to this borough, slightly over 40 years ago.

"When I first arrived in Bristol, beavers had built a dam between Rocky Woods and Featherbed Lane," he remarked. When asked on what small stream, the physician stated he could not remember the name, "but it was one of the small feeders for the mill pond, and the dam was located beyond the head of the pond."

Continuing, he told that the amphibious rodents were at that time felling small trees and making themselves generally comfortable by erecting a dam and building a home.

"Have you heard of or seen any beavers in this county since that time?" the Radcliffe street physician was asked. "No," he replied, "not until I read last week of the ones near Emille." Strangely enough the Queen Anne's Creek where beavers are now living is also a feeder for the mill pond, or Silver Lake as it is frequently referred to.

When asked what had become of the beavers which were in the locality over four decades ago, Dr. Abbott stated that he presumed they had been killed off.

It is now more certainly established that Beaver Dam Road received its name from the beaver dam which Dr. Abbott recalls, as this road leads directly from Bristol borough to the beginning of Featherbed Lane, near to which the dam of long ago was located.

CART AFTER THE HORSE

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—(INS)—Local peace officers are looking for a Shetland pony which they expect to find drawing an old-fashioned surrey. A few days after the theft of the pony was reported, A. Frazier notified police that someone had stolen a covered buggy of the surrey type from his premises.

FUNERAL OF YARDLEY MAN WILL OCCUR TODAY

John C. Watson Dies in His 77th Year; Was Stricken
Suddenly

BURIAL AT NEWTOWN

YARDLEY, Feb. 6.—Funeral services for John C. Watson, son of the late Aldopys Y. and Henrietta Watson, who died suddenly at his home near Yardley Saturday night, will be held from his late home this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Watson, who was in his 77th year, was reading the evening paper, and conversing at intervals with his wife, Louisa C., when without warning the paper dropped to the floor and Mr. Watson's body became rigid. Mrs. Watson summoned Dr. O. C. Engle, Yardley, and also neighbors, but death had been instantaneous.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson have resided on their farm in this vicinity for 45 years.

The deceased is survived by his widow, Louisa C.; a son, A. Yerkes, of Lansdale; a brother, Augustus, of Philadelphia; and a sister, Adda H. Harvey, Pitman, N. J.

Interment will be in Newtown Cemetery.

Birthday is Jolly Occasion For Miss Dorothy Scheffey

Miss Dorothy Scheffey was the complimented guest Saturday evening at a birthday celebration tendered her by the Misses Olive Winslow and Louise Smith at the latter's home, Cleveland street.

The decorative scheme was in blue, and participants were: the Misses Dorothy Scheffey, Clara Crohe, Anna Keers, Doris Barr, Louise Smith and Olive Winslow; Arthur Pickering, Martin Healey, Joseph Whittier, B. Smith, Paul Vandegrift and Daniel Halpin.

A jolly evening of dancing was enjoyed and Miss Scheffey was presented with many beautiful gifts.

DISTURBANCES IN CUBA

San Diego, Cuba, Feb. 6.—Serious disturbances in connection with the strike against the American owned Cuban Electric Company, including two bombings, occurred here today. One man was blown to pieces when a bomb he was carrying exploded. Another bomb damaged the Spanish Club. Parts of the city were without lights last night.

MORNING STAR CHAPTER ORGANIZED 11 YEARS AGO

Benevolences, Charity and Sociability as Foremost Ideals

50 CHARTER MEMBERS

This is one of a series of articles in which an effort has been made to record the history of various organizations in this area. Some idea of that which has been accomplished by the organizations is also given and as much data as is published as has been available. The information upon which the articles are based has been furnished by those still active in the organizations.

Article IX.

Morning Star Chapter, No. 395, Order of the Eastern Star, was brought into existence eleven years ago, with benevolences, charity and sociability as foremost ideals and activities of the order.

Fifty charter members were listed when Morning Star Chapter was constituted on the 23rd of February, 1923. The organization of the local chapter was brought about mainly through efforts of Mrs. Lucy Risdon, then of Morrisville, a member of Morning Star Chapter, Trenton, N. J.; and of Mrs. Lucy Doust, of Trenton, formerly of Bristol. Mrs. Doust is likewise affiliated with Trenton Morning Star Chapter, and she together with Mrs. Risdon and the district deputy, Mrs. May H. Taylor, of Conshohocken, were most active in the work of organization here. Mrs. Doust has since that time been honored by the Bristol Chapter in being made an honorary member of that body.

The membership has been added to gradually in the past 11 years, with the result that the list now includes 135 names. The average attendance at meetings on the first Wednesday evening of each month is 60. The meeting place of the order is the Travel Club Home. The membership territory assigned to Chapter 395 is from Morrisville to Andalusia, and from the Reading Railroad, Langhorne, to the Delaware River.

Those who now serve as officers are: Worthy matron, Mrs. Gladys E. Richardson, Andalusia; associate matron, Mrs. Hilda Wunsch, South Langhorne; secretary, Mrs. Lena Broad bridge, Bristol; treasurer, Mrs. May Smoyer, Bristol; conductress, Mrs. Irene Wenzel, Bristol; associate conductress, Mrs. Reba Miller, Philadelphia; chaplain, Mrs. Ethel M. O'Dea; Edgely; marshal, Mrs. Edna Brady; Edgely; organist, Mrs. Margaret Schmidt; Other officers are: Mrs. Ella Weber, Andalusia; Mrs. Marian Weston, Hulmeville; Miss Zoe Gould, Edgely; Miss Ethel Roberts, Tullytown; Mrs. Mildred Smith, Cornwells Heights; Mrs. Naomi Foster, Bristol; Mrs. Viola Bradway, Bristol.

Finances for their many charitable cases and benevolences are secured by the members in the staging of suppers, luncheons and card parties.

In addition to providing garments from time to time, as well as other articles for the Harriman Hospital, the Chapter acts as a director of the Bristol Branch of the Needlework Guild of America. A few hundred articles of clothing are secured for each annual exhibit of the local guild, these being made by members of the Eastern Star who meet to sew throughout the year. Charity is dispensed to needy members of the chapter also, gifts including medicine, groceries, shoes, clothing, etc.

Contributions are made by Chapter 395 to other organizations in the borough which dispense charity. The Chapter assisted during Girls' Week activities when such was conducted here.

Money is also given to the Educational Loan Fund of the Eastern Star of Pennsylvania, from which fund sums up to $300 are loaned preferably to seniors and juniors at various colleges. Those who thus benefit are sons and daughters of Eastern Star members. Among other contributions of the local order are those to the Eastern Eastern Star Home, which is located in Philadelphia. At this home aged members of the Eastern Star are cared for. Support is also given by the localities to the National O. E. S. Temple in Washington, D. C.

FAIRBANKS, SR., NAMED CO-RESPONDENT

London, England, Feb. 6.—Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., was formally served today with papers naming him as co-respondent in a divorce action brought by Lord Ashley, heir to the Earl of Shaftesbury, against Lady Ashley, the former Eryla Hawkes, actress. The papers were served upon Fairbanks at the office of his solicitor, Fairbanks declined to make a statement other than that he planned to leave today for a holiday on the Continent. Details of the suit are as yet unknown, but it was believed here that associations of Lady Ashley and the famous American motion picture actor at a west end luxury hotel and aboard a yacht would figure in Lord Ashley's charges. Filing of the suit climaxed rumors that have been current in London, Hollywood and on the Continent for months.

INSULT MAY GO TO DENMARK

Copenhagen, Denmark, Feb. 6.—Samuel Insull, indicted former Chicago Utilities magnate, reported to be planning a flight here from Greece in a private boat, would be permitted to remain in Denmark for at least six months if he carried a valid passport, I. N. S. was informed today.

ATTEMPT TO SMASH STRIKE

New York City, Feb. 6.—A determined attempt to smash the taxi-cab strike was made today by independent cab owners who ran gauntlet of hostile pickets in the mid-town section. Mayor LaGuardia, returning from Washington conferences indicated he would press for an immediate settlement of the disorder. The Mayor announced hearings on an N. R. A. code for the taxi industry would begin here Monday regardless of the strike outcome.

SLAYER ORDERED TO HOSPITAL

Munsey, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Mary Zitzner, 28, Sharon, who a month ago started police circles when she walked into Sharon police headquarters and told officers she had strangled her two year old son, today was ordered confined to the Munsey Hospital for Women by Judge J. A. McLaughry. County authorities said the woman probably would be paroled when her mental and physical condition improved.

WOMEN CLUB MEMBERS TO TALK CONSERVATION

Meeting To Be Held in New Century Club On February 17th

OTHER COUNTY NOTES

Bucks county, it is expected, will be well represented at a meeting of the conservation committee of the Southeastern District of the State Federation of Women's Clubs when it will be the guest of the New Century Club of Philadelphia, 124 South 12th street, on Saturday, February 17th.

Four major topics of timely and pertinent interest will be presented and discussed at this meeting by outstanding conservationists.

One of the speakers on this occasion will be Curtis May, of the United States Department of Agriculture, who is now in charge of the laboratory at East Orange, N. J. Mr. May will speak of the disease of the Dutch elm. Of special interest to the delegations from Bucks county will be the address to be given by W. W. Heinlsh, ree and wild flower expert and supervisor of the C. W. A. activities at Washington Crossing Park. Mr. Heinlsh is scheduled to give a talk on the wild flower preserve at Bowman's Hill a part of the park.

The Court of Bucks County in the case of Lewis Ketter, Langhorne, against Milton P. Miller, Langhorne, as been reversed by the Superior Court of Penna. It was announced today.

The reversal was based on an error of the Court below in permitting certain cross-examination and in refusing to permit a witness to testify to a conversation relative to a question of board and lodging. The case was tried in the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County during the October term 1932, when a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff. A motion for a new trial was refused and the case was appealed to the Superior Court by John L. DuBois, of Doylestown.

Active steps to establish an airport in Quakertown, or bordering on it, were taken by the Quakertown Chamber of Commerce at the meeting held a few days ago. President Alfred S. Johnson reported that he has had several sites approved, talked the matter over with local aid enthusiasts, and was prepared to go further. The meeting closed by appointing him a delegate to interview the Quakertown Borough Council next Wednesday night on the project.

Henry A. James Marries Mrs. E. H. Boyd, Phila.

Henry A. James, well known County Seat attorney, and Mrs. Esther B. Boyd, of 319 Sanger street, Philadelphia, were united in marriage, Saturday, by President Judge Hiram H. Keller, in the living room of the bridegroom's residence, 33 North Main street, Doylestown.

There were no attendants, and immediately following the ceremony, Mr. James and his bride left for Atlantic City, N. J., where they spent their honeymoon.

Both Mrs. James and her husband were previously married.

Mr. James, besides being one of the oldest members of the Bucks County Bar, is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Doylestown, and numerous fraternal, civic and social clubs. Mrs. James, prior to her marriage on Saturday, was an interior decorator. She is a native Philadelphian.

PAIR WHO STOLE MONEY FROM CHURCH MUST PAY

Given Six Months in Which To Reimburse Hulmeville
Methodists

SAY THEY WILL PAY UP

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 6.—Six months to pay up or go to jail is the ultimatum issued by President Judge Hiram H. Keller to Raymond Stevenson and Arthur Kauffman, who on October 3, 1932, pleaded guilty to stealing money from the Hulmeville Methodist Church.

At the time the two men pleaded guilty, the Court suspended prison sentence on condition that they pay the costs of prosecution and pay back the money that was stolen from the church, and both men were placed on probation for two years.

District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn informed the Court that at a recent meeting of the trustees of the Hulmeville church they passed a resolution asking that the matter be taken back to Court and that the church people would be satisfied if Stevenson and Kauffman each paid the church $50.

Rev. T. William Smith, pastor of the Hulmeville church, informed the Court that Stevenson had been offered employment on the church grounds so that he could "work out" his $50 but that he only worked two days, saying that he would not work for charity. Stevenson explained to the Court that he did quit the church work because he had another job that paid him.

Finally, both men assured the Court, through a Hulmeville business man that the money would be paid back within six months, and this promise was backed up by recognizance furnished by the backer of the two men, who claimed they have been out of work since the thefts were committed. Stevenson also claimed that he stole but $12 and not $50, but Judge Keller informed him that he would pay $50 or go to jail.

Frank Aliff, of Quakertown, was granted a parole yesterday by Judge Calvin S. Boyer on condition that he stay away from Quakertown unless he had permission to go there from his probation officer, County Detective Antonio Russo, and on condition that he pay the costs in the case at the rate of $10 a month. Aliff served a sentence for striking a Quakertown police officer.

Judge Boyer yesterday discharged Joseph Mich, forty-two, of Tinticum township, who was arrested on a charge of surety of the peace brought by his wife, Emma Mich, thirty-five. They were married in 1918.

Mrs. Mich testified that her husband made many threats toward her, one being that he would "cut me up to mince meat." She said that he also threatened to shoot her and that he was not true to her. She said that she has been afraid of him for the past five years.

Mich denied his wife's allegations. He claimed that a first cousin of his, Floyd Flagler, was the cause of most of the differences that he and his wife had; that he found Flagler at the house at times when he should not be there.

When District Attorney Eastburn asked Mich whether he would be satisfied to separate from his wife, Mich immediately answered, "that will suit me." His wife answered in the same manner to a similar question. Mich said that he desired to have his children go and live with him at the home of an aunt.

When Mich's attorney, John L. DuBois, of Doylestown objected to the Court and District Attorney asking Mich whether he would be willing to give up his home that was purchased with his wife's money, the Court made no further suggestions and discharged Mich, reminding Attorney DuBois that if the case ever came in court again, that the objection of the attorney would be remembered in reaching a decision.

COURT SUSTAINS APPEAL FROM A 'MINOR' CONVICTION

In Case of Commonwealth
Against George W.
Beam

DISCHARGE DEFENDANT

Not in Sympathy With Act of Assembly, States the Court

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 6.—In an opinion handed down by Judge Calvin S. Boyer in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Bucks County today, the Court sustained an appeal from a summary conviction in the case of Commonwealth against George W. Beam, and directed that the defendant be discharged.

Judge Boyer, in the opinion, declared that the Court was not in sympathy with that portion of the Act of Assembly having to do with taking summary convictions before the nearest Justice of the Peace and criticized it as "most unwise" legislation.

The prosecution was brought by the defendant before Justice of the Peace William H. Hower, of Warwick township by Constable George Stockberger, Jr., for violation of the automobile law in passing a "stop sign" at an intersecting highway on the Street Road in Southampton township.

There were two other Justices of the Peace in Southampton, each residing about a mile and a half from this intersection. Justice Hower resided three miles from the intersection. The defendant appeared before Justice Hower, waived a hearing and took an appeal to the Court of Quarter Sessions.

The Court of Quarter Sessions in an opinion handed down today, decided that inasmuch as Justice Hower was not the nearest Justice and did not reside in the township where the violation took place, the Constable had no right to lodge the information before him and that the prosecution was, therefore, void, and the defendant was discharged.

The questions of law which Judge Boyer decided were:

"First, that under the Act of 1931, page 808, amending the Vehicle Code of 1929, the prosecution must be brought either before the nearest Justice, even though he be outside that township, or, at the pleasure of the Constable, before any Justice within the township; that a prosecution cannot be brought before a Justice outside of the township where the offense was committed unless such Justice is nearer the scene of the violation than the Justices in the township.

"Second, that it is the duty of every Justice of the Peace to receive and hear all legal prosecutions brought before him; that they have no right to refuse to entertain such prosecutions and that they may be compelled by a mandamus from the proper Court to hear such prosecutions.

"Third, that where the Justices specified in the Act are not available by reason of illness, absence or refusal to act for fifteen days after the commission of the offense, the Constable or other officer has implied authority to go before the next nearest Justice of the Peace.

"Fourth, that the more request on the part of the Justice of the Peace not to have summary conviction cases brought before him will not justify a constable in going to another Justice of the Peace outside of the township and not specified in the Act, but before he may do so there must be an absolute refusal on the part of the proper Justices to hear the case."

Judge Boyer handed down the following opinions in the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County today:

Assigned Estate of John S. Bailey and Brother, Insolvents. Sur rule why Louis W. F. Bailey and wife should not convey certain real estate to the assignee. Rule discharged.

Bernard Dickman against F. D. Hartzel's Sons Company. Sur rule for judgment n. o. v. Rule made absolute and judgment entered for defendants.

Estate of Sarah Ann Booz. Citation to show cause why certain legacies should not be paid by the devisees of the real estate. Rule made absolute and devisees directed to pay the legacies or upon failure to do so, the real estate to be sold.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller handed down the following opinions in the Court of Common Pleas today:

Broad Street National Bank of Trenton against George W. Balderson. The rule for a more specific statement is sustained as to the time of negotiation and dismissed as to the matter of consideration. Plaintiff is directed to file a new or amended statement to overcome the objection herein sustained, within 15 days, from the date hereof.

Northeast Alumni Building & Loan Association in Liquidation, H. Oscar Smith, Theodore G. Altender and Clifford P. Allen, 3d, liquidating trustees, against Thomas A. Collier. The affidavit of defense raising questions of law is hereby dismissed and the defendant is directed to file an affidavit of defense as to the merits of the claim within 15 days, from the date hereof.

CHEAPER ELECTRICITY

The last decade has witnessed an amazing interconnection of existing electric power systems in the United States to form several great units of distribution physically though not financially connected. The consumer has benefitted from this linking-up process because the price of power has been constantly downward.

The great advantage of this physical inter-connection of plants lies in the assurance of continued power at any point in the system in the event of local generation trouble or a sudden increase in the demand that cannot be supplied by the local station.

Another benefit, and one that saves consumers money, is the capital saving for power companies in not being required to provide reserve equipment. Reserve equipment is expensive and any reduction means less capital charges to be borne by the electricity sold and in one of the factors which have enabled electric light and power companies to reduce the price of electricity.

One tremendous hook-up takes in 75 per cent of the manufacturing area of the United States and stretches from Maine to the Middle West and from Canada to Florida.

This tremendous massing of kilowatts should not be accepted as a forerunner of a power monopoly or a time when a few central plants will produce all the power. Small local plants are important cogs in the system, though they cannot always meet peak local loads.

MARTYRS ALL

Few things are so enjoyable to weak natures as a martyrdom that costs little or nothing.

It is commonly supposed that martyrdom of this kind is an evidence of unselfishness, but as a matter of fact, it is no more than a cheap method of stroking the ego.

The weak who are not abnormally vain may be content with self-pity but the combination of weakness and vanity demands sympathy. Sympathy is its bread and meat. It purrs with delight under the petting hand of pity.

Weak and vain folks make conversation of their afflictions, because those who have sympathy to give become callous and must be reminded that their pity is desired. Paradoxically, the self-styled martyr is the last to sympathize with a fellow martyr with even greater imaginary afflictions.

This martyr complex troubles nearly all humans to some extent. The child's cries are inspired more by hope of mother's consoling kisses and sympathetic words than by the little hurt. Wives complain about the burden of housework and husbands talk about "hard days" at the office in the hope of sympathy from their mates. And why do people talk about their operations, illnesses and that forlorn extraction of a tooth if it is not that they do not wish to make themselves appear as martyrs in the eyes of their friends and associates?

Martyrdom quickly turns up its toes to the daisy roots when its diet of sympathy is shut off.

Panhandlers could learn a few tricks in coin collecting from Uncle Sam.

Maybe Babe Ruth will think that having received a pay cut, he should cut down his home runs.

Stop Getting Up Nights

Lax the Bladder With Juniper Oil, Buchu, Etc.

Drive out the impurities and excess acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Juniper oil is pleasant to take in the form of BUKETS, the bladder laxative, also containing Buchu leaves, etc. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of "getting up nights" go back and get your money. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Serrill Douglass says BUKETS is a best seller.—(Adv.)

BEHIND the SCENES in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD. . . . Evelyn Venable's scar about her film career is over. She has the permission of her father, Professor Emerson Venable of Cincinnati, to go on being an actress, though still a kissless one.

Even this is quite a victory, for the pretty Evelyn left here with fear and trembling to answer the parental summons.

She found Cincinnati eager to welcome her as the local girl who had made good in the movies. Local automobile dealers had two cars to meet her at the station and placed one at her disposal during her stay in the city. Perhaps this may have impressed the professor. Anyway, he turned out to be just another yielding father, and gave his okay for the return trip to Hollywood.

Evelyn arrived here yesterday, and the studio has tactfully agreed to certain changes that Professor Venable suggested in the script of "Double Door."

One thing, Evelyn wants to make plain. She is not in love with Cameraman Hal Mohr, as Hollywood rumor insisted, or with anybody else.

Originally scheduled to be married in January, Lola Lane and Al Hall are daily receding further from the altar, and you can write it down that they will end up as just friends. Al's directorial career, however, is booming. He'll next do the Damon Runyon story, "Little Miss Marker," for Paramount.

The Joan Bennett-Gene Markey baby, expected the latter part of this month, will find both grandmothers on hand to greet it. Gene's mother, Mrs. E. L. Markey, has been his house guest since the holidays, but, due to lack of bedrooms in the Markey domicile, is now moving into a hotel to make way for Joan's mother, Mrs. Eric Pinker, who arrived in Hollywood yesterday from New York.

Having one child already, Joan takes the approaching event calmly, but Gene is already in a state of jitters.

Now in its thirty-second week here, the revival of P. T. Barnum's old temperance play, "The Drunkard," not only has afforded amusement to every celebrity in Hollywood, but is winning film offers for most or its cast. Ruth Marlon, daughter of George Marion, first won the praise of Charlie Chaplin and John Barrymore for her pantomime, and then began to get screen work at Paramount. Now Hal Roach is taking Henry Kleinback, the villain, into "Babes in Toyland." And Rudy Vallee used Jan Duggan, billed as the "Bowery Nightingale," in one of his national broadcasts.

Housed in a 220-seat theatre and giving away several hundred dollars worth of beer, coffee and sandwiches each week, the company has not made a great deal of money but seems set for an indefinite run. Dick Barthelmess has been five times and W. C. Fields four times. The place is nearly always sold out two weeks in advance and one reservation is already made for April.

QUICK GLIMPSES:

Mrs. Harry M. Warner, having tea in Hollywood yesterday, got her biggest thrill when she received a telephone call from her daughter Doris and Mervyn Leroy, 12,000 miles away in Suz. They said (but you've guessed it) that they are having a fine time and were both well.

One of the reasons Kay Francis isn't playing Josephine is that her fans objected when she did the other picture with Edward G. Robinson. "The two of you are cinematically incompatible," was the way one man put it.

You can forget those rumors about Gene Raymond appearing in "Sadie McKee." He wires he is going to Palm Beach for two weeks and then back to New York to be with his mother on her birthday, February 24.

"And all the money in the world couldn't prevent me from being with her on that day," the wire concludes.

Barbara Stanwyck is too ill to go to New York as she had planned.

Richie Crain's widow, Edith, is in town. . . . The cigarette girl in the Brown Derby was a Paramount plant after all. She was under contract to Leroy Prinz to work in the Earl Carroll picture. . . . Mack Gray ("The Killer") is having dates with Gean Lacy, once of Educational Comedies. . . . And Lew Ayres has completed scoring his rhapsody for a 52-piece orchestra.

SYNOPSIS

After three years' travel in Europe, where she had gone following her father's death, young and beautiful Stanley Paige became bored and returned to New York to find the "something sort of sweet and important" which she felt was missing. Stanley finds Perry Deverest, handsome young lawyer, still as much in love with her as ever, but her own heart is untouched. She longs for someone to love—someone to really belong to. Then she meets the fascinating Drew Armitage. It is love at sight. Drew's most recent heart had been sophisticated Dennis St. John. In breaking with her, he said: "You know, Dennis, you're a lot like me—you know when a thing is ended and you accept it—gracefully." Ned Wingate informs Stanley that the latter's lawyer, Charles Carleton, has been playing the market heavily and wonders if her funds are intact. Knowing that love to Stanley means marriage, Drew casually preaches. Realizing her extreme innocence, he regrets his flirtatious past. Drew admits to Dennis that, although he is not marrying Stanley for her money, if she were poor he would have loved her just the same but . . . he would have the good sense to stay away from her. Then comes the crash and Stanley's fortune is lost. As long as she has Drew, the loss of the money means nothing to Stanley. Her castles crumble when he informs her it would be madness to attempt marriage on his income.

CHAPTER TWELVE

Stanley felt her fingers dragging at her lips. She was trembling again. Uncontrollably. She wished he would go. Quickly before she did something stupid. Before she flung herself in his arms and begged him to stay; before she beat his face with her clenched fists and told him she hated him. She sunk her nails into her clenched hands and set her teeth into her underlip to keep it from shaking.

"Aren't you going to say—anything?" He frowned at her uncertainly. Like all men who were intimate with women he was afraid of emotional silences. He had felt he could depend on Stanley. That she would not go hysterical on him. She was not the emotional type that threatened to kill themselves when thwarted. But now he felt a bit uneasy. She had stared at him so long with those wide gray eyes, her mouth such a pitiless shaken thing. Better to go now while things were not too complicated. Better to leave her while it was still possible. He decided suddenly not only to leave her, but to leave New York. To go back to Chicago. It would be kinder to both of them. And much safer.

"I'm going away," he told her, putting his decision into words. "and I'm not coming back. You think I'm cruel now but you'll come to see that I'm really being kind. Try not to think too badly of me, Stanley. I shall never forget you, you know. And I shall always regret having hurt you—but never having loved you!"

He would go now. Quickly before anything happened to spoil that last speech. Gosh, but she looked beautiful, standing there, in those silly pajamas! It had certainly been a rotten break. Carleton's losing that money. He'd loved her, desired her, more than any other girl he'd ever known. Possessing her would have been a unique and unforgettable experience. It was rotten bad luck. He deliberated whether to kiss her again or not. Decided against it. That last kiss had been a total failure. He smiled at her honestly, compassionately. For a brief, fleeting second he was sorer for her than for himself. Then, still feeling magnanimous, he turned and strode across the room.

He was going now. She watched him leave her. Watched him cross the long room. Watched him open the door. Then as suddenly and unexpectedly as he had come into her life, he had gone out of it—leaving her quite alone in Alita Lawson's charming drawing room.

As abruptly as Stanley had flung herself face downward on the chintz divan, she jerked herself up. Her body was no longer shaken by those hard, punishing sobs, only her mouth remained demoralized. Her eyes were quite guiltless of tears. Her hands completely steady. She stood up and walked swiftly out of the room. As she went she was very careful not to look at the place where Drew's cigarette lay, a limp, dead thing flung into a silver ash tray; was very careful not to look at the great bowl of golden roses he had sent that morning. But she was terribly aware of both of these things: the dead gray ash of his cigarette, the golden fragrance of his roses.

She went out of the room and down the hall to her room where Ellen was waiting for her. But she ignored her old nurse's compassionate eyes, outstretched hands.

"I'm going out, Ellen," she said, her voice even, completely unemotional. "Get me into some street clothes, will you? And telephone for the car."

Ellen dressed her silently, laid out her flat, smooth purse, fresh suede gloves. Watched her pull on a tight little red hat, run a lipstick over her mouth, touch her cheeks with rouge. Watched her tuck the purse under her arm, pull on her gloves with steady fingers.

"Don't look so tragic, Ellen." She paused at the door, a faintly reassuring smile curving her stricken mouth. "I'm perfectly all right. And don't worry about me—nothing more can ever possibly happen to me!"

She felt the engine throb beneath her hands, pressed her foot harder on the accelerator and felt the long, low-slung car leap ahead, a sudden cream-colored streak in a long line of orange and red taxis, sleek dark town cars and roaring trucks. A light changed and she jammed on her brakes, holding the high-powered car back as one would restrain a restive thoroughbred, releasing it with a roar when the signal changed. A young policeman looked after her with half-admiring, half-concerned eyes. "She's desperate—that one," he thought to himself, "when they drive like that—they don't give a damn—and she's pretty, too. I wonder what's busted her up so?"

Five after mile of asphalt melted away beneath the hot rubber of her tires. Mile after mile of endless suburb trailed past her eyes in an ever-unfolding ribbon of paved streets, brick houses, frame houses, children, milk trucks, parks, filling stations, railroad crossings, factories, more houses, more children, women with market baskets, women

What is a G. P. A. to do?

BIG BUSINESS has its laboratories and its bureau of standards where products submitted to General Purchasing Agents may be tested searchingly. But Big Business has not all the intelligent G. P. A.'s, nor has it any monopoly on big purchases.

The women of this country make eighty-five per cent of all retail purchases—and they influence the rest. They are G. P. A.'s for 25 million independent businesses, the households of America. Without charts, graphs, or laboratories, how are they to buy efficiently? How are they to be sure of securing honest, wholesome products for use by their families?

Their guide is advertising in the daily paper. They realize, sensibly enough, that the merchants of their town talk to them truthfully in advertisements. They watch these pages for news of advantageous purchases. They welcome the new or better product when informed of it through advertising.

The merchants and manufacturers who use this newspaper realize that your patronage, not only this year but next, is the life of their businesses. They test and criticize and study merchandise more rigorously than you ever could. You may read their advertisements with confidence. Guided by them, you may buy efficiently!

Any one can spend money — the reader of advertisements spends wisely

For efficiency the home-maker uses her time wisely. The answer is that Mrs. Blank recognizes the fact that she can manufacture time. She makes time in the only possible way. She takes it from unnecessary processes, from time-wasting habits, and applies that time to improving her life and the lives of those around her.

No ironclad schedule can be given for doing this, but there are some time-saving methods which must be considered to release the homemaker for pleasures and cultural pursuits with her family.

First of all, more time is wasted in useless steps around the house than in any other single way. This is especially true in the kitchen where so many tasks of vital importance are done. Contributing to the inefficiency are improper installation of equipment, poor arrangement of equipment large and small, lack of the proper equipment for efficient work, improper care of equipment, and thoughtlessness or forgetfulness which calls for retracing steps and doing things over.

A homemaker can become more efficient in saving energy and manufacturing time by keeping her utensils near the place where they are to be used.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.

A group of Harold Lloyd's friends are trying to sell him an idea and if you fans take it up, he may consent.

They want the comedian to let his 3-year-old son play Harold as a boy in "The Cat-a-Paw."

The script of the picture calls for a 6-year-old youngster, but this is easily altered and Harold, Jr., is fully able to say the required lines and to do the necessary acting. The boy already has appeared in thousands of feet of film. Harold has been photographing him ever since he was a baby.

Friends argue that the motion picture public would be much interested in seeing the Lloyd heir. Harold is wavering, but he and Mildred Davis don't want to appear to commercialize their family life.

Also, as Harold puts it: "If you use the boy, you'll have to find parts for the two girls, or there'll be a revolution at my house."

The trigger-mind of Lupe Velez works even when she is upside down.

They had the peppery actress hanging by her knees from a crossbar on the set of "Hollywood Party." There was some minor difficulty with the camera and the take was delayed.

Getting redder every second, Lupe shouted: "Hurry up there, I'm not Tarzan, I'm only his mate!"

What are said to be the only films ever made of dope manufacture on a large scale have fallen into the hands of Walter Putter, Hollywood producer, and he is considering building a feature picture around them. The scenes were surreptitiously photographed in a certain Oriental country and were then brought into the United States. They have been stolen once and recovered. Putter would call his picture, "The Kingdom of Evil."

Ramon Novarro, whose home town, Durango (Mexico), was also that of Pancho Villa, relates this hitherto unpublished anecdote of the Mexican general.

After a hard ride, Villa came into town and repaired to Durango's equivalent of an American Turkish bath.

Fifteen minutes later, shots were inside and the general came bolting out with a smoking pistol in his hand. He had had an argument with an attendant and had rushed out in his bath costume, two bandoliers of cartridges over his shoulders and a pair of holsters at his waist.

When Henry B. Walthall came up for the part of a union telegrapher in Marion Davies' new picture, "Operator 13," they asked him if he knew the Morse code.

"Do I know it?" exclaimed Walthall. "Look here."

Whereupon, he flipped out a sentence by quickly batting his eye-lids.

He was a typical hick and hotel attendants at Oakland hesitated to disturb Jean Harlow. But the fellow insisted he had been riding from 3 o'clock in the morning until noon to see the star and to present her with a home-made cake and an embroidered handkerchief. Finally, a clerk, who still had a heart beating behind an immaculate shirt-front, called Jean's room and gave her the man's name.

"Why certainly I'll see him," she said. "I've been corresponding with him for a long time. He is one of my best fans."

HAWKS TAKE FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE

Chalking up their fourth straight win, the Hawks moved into first place in the Bristol Basketball League last night by registering a close victory over the Young Men's Association on the Italian Mutual Aid court. Final score was 35-33.

The Birds have won every game played since they were beaten at the hands of the Hibernians in the opening game of the second half. Since then they have played the kind of basketball that carried them to the top notch position in the league.

Unable to stop Dick Brown or "Bill" Benner made the goings touch for the Hawks. Brown scored several difficult shots and made fourteen points while the center man scored ten. It was the work of these two boys that kept the Y's in the battle until the last minute when a field goal would have deadlocked the count and sent the game into an extra period.

The Hawks possessed a fine passing attack which did not take any effect until the third quarter when the ultimate winners scored eleven points. At one time the 1932-33 champions were leading, 21-18 before a spurt put the Hawks ahead, 26-21.

"Herbie" Lawrence with his all-around playing led the Hawks to victory. Besides his fine guarding game, Lawrence counted twelve points. "Ed" Dugan scored eight points and held the usually high scoring "Reds" Bailey scoreless from the field.

Paris, France, Feb. 6.—The new American exchange equalization fund was put into operation in Paris for the first time today. It was reported, as the dollar scored a sharp drop of thirty points at 11:30 a. m. Bringing 16.20 francs in dealings prior to the official opening of the Paris Bourse, the dollar, at 11:30 had fallen to 15.90.

ODD FELLOWS LOSE ANOTHER TOUGH GAME

The Odd Fellows lost another tough game last night in the night-cap when the quintet was beaten by the Hibernians, 40-34. It was the fifth straight reverse for the Black and White team. Failure to account for field goals in the first half was the cause of the Odd Fellows' defeat. During the first twenty minutes of playing the "Oddies" only scored twice from the field while in the second half they scored eleven times.

In the third quarter the Big Green looked more like itself when it counted nineteen points. It was in this period that the Corson street boys put the game on ice although the boys of Herman with that never-die spirit gave them a merry chase in the final session.

Both clubs scored eight foul goals but the Hibs only had fourteen chances while the Black and White quintet took twenty-three chances.

Every player in the line-ups scored at least one point during the match. On Thursday night St. Ann's will play Third Ward and the P. P. Co. will play the Knights of Columbus.

freed, while the poor man who could not delay his case by appeal, went to prison.

"There are doubtless many cases where accused violators resorted to appeal because they saw repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment coming. They should not be favored over those who could not follow that course."

"Every element of justice—of fairness for the poor as well as for the rich—is in favor of extension of clemency to those in prison."

McLeod will go before the House Judiciary Committee asking action on his resolution so Congress can request Mr. Roosevelt to act.

The government would save a huge amount of money by freeing prohibition law violators.

Sanford Bates, Superintendent of Federal prisons, in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee, said that 27.1 per cent. of all inmates of Federal prisons, reformatories, institutions and jails are there for prohibition law violations.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6.—(INS)—A Supreme Court ruling granting amnesty to Federal prohibition law violators today affected about 250 persons awaiting trial in Federal district court on 1010 indictments.

Only those awaiting trial on Federal indictments were freed by the ruling. Persons arrested in this district for violating the State dry law, the former Snyder-Armstrong Act, must wait until Judge George V. Moore renders a decision on their status. Although the act was repealed at the recent special session of the General Assembly, about 25 indictments on this charge still exist.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park declined to comment on the Snyder Act indictment pending Judge Moore's decision expected late this week. Defense attorneys, however, argued convictions or sentences under this statute which died with prohibition repeal would be unlawful.

DIES OF BURNS

Seranton, Feb. 6.—Raymond Brown, of Long Branch, N. J., died today in a Seranton State Hospital of burns suffered yesterday when the truck on which he was riding hurdled over a 70-foot embankment and burst into flames. Artist King, a negro of Seabright, N. J., the driver was burned to death in the cab of the truck.

WANT TO UNSEAT BECK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—An attempt to unseat Representative James Beck, Republican, of Pennsylvania, was begun today by John J. Shanahan, of Philadelphia, before a House Elections Committee.

Shanahan, a Democrat, charges the election which placed Beck in Congress as a representative of the second Pennsylvania district was conducted fraudulently.

Beck, who formerly served as United States Solicitor General, has been a vigorous critic of the Roosevelt recovery program in the House. He has repeatedly voiced charges on the floor that the President measures violated the Constitution.

TO REMAIN ON STRIKE

Pittsburgh, Feb. 6.—Determined to remain on strike until their demands of some $14 to $20 a week and union recognition are granted, several hundred hotel employees formed picket lines around Pittsburgh's leading hotels today. The activities were centered principally around the William Penn where approximately 300 employees walked out, crippling restaurant service to some extent.

TWO PLACES DYNAMITED

Wilkes-Barre, Feb. 6.—Two dynamite explosions occurred today, as delegates gathered for the special convention of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania to consider a proposal for ending the strike in this district, with the result uncertain. The first blast was set off in the rear of a garage at Miners Mills. The blast damaged the building and broke windows, but no one was injured. The second explosion damaged the home of a Glen Alden Coal Company worker in South Wilkes-Barre.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa.—(INS)—Physicians at the local hospital probed for several hours for the safety pin that two-year-old Harry Sennet told his mother he had placed in his nose. With the use of a fluoroscope, they eventually found the pin in the child's stomach. A special diet was recommended.

Those Record-Breaking Rangers

By BURNLEY

THOSE record-breakers of modern hockey, the New York Rangers, seem to be sure of a place in the Stanley Cup playoffs again this season, thus keeping intact their record of never having missed the playoffs since the N. H. L. was started. The list of records established by Lester Patrick's blue-clad warriors is too long to be included in full in a short article.

The Big Seven of the Rangers, Bill and Bun Cook, Frank Boucher, Murray Murdoch, Ching Johnson, Manager Lester Patrick and Trainer Harry Westerbly, have been with the team since it was organized at the start of the National Hockey League in 1926. These veterans of the Blue have seen service in more than 400 games. All of them came to New York together.

The front line of Bill Cook, Bun Cook and Frank Boucher have been together for eight consecutive seasons. This front line has amassed over 800 scoring points in the N. H. L., the world's record for any complete forward line.

Bill Cook has been captain of the Rangers since their organization and his all-time scoring record surpasses all others. Frank Boucher has won the Lady Byng Cup for clean play five times.

Murray "Mudhooks" Murdoch has played more than 400 consecutive games without missing one—perhaps the most remarkable iron-man feat in modern sport history, when you consider how liable to injury hockey players are.

The Rangers also hold the record for consecutive scoring—going 77 straight games without being whitewashed.

Lester Patrick has not missed a league, playoff or exhibition game from the bench for fifteen consecutive years, and has been a big time hockey pilot for twenty-three straight years.
